

Notice the official USCCB website listed the feast of the Baptism of the Lord as “Ordinary Time” (which it isn’t):

The screenshot shows the USCCB website header with navigation links: Home, Topics, News, Departments, Bible, Catechism, Readings, Movies, Bookstore, Bishops, Dioceses. The main heading is "New American Bible". A search bar is visible. The date "January 9, 2005" is displayed in red, followed by "The Baptism of the Lord (First Sunday in Ordinary Time)" in red. Below this, "Psalm: Sunday 5" is listed in green. Underneath, "Reading I" is shown in purple, with the text "Is 42:1-4, 6-7" in green. The main text of the reading is in black, and a small grey text at the bottom reads "I, the LORD, have called you for the victory of justice,".

This is a topic the reformers fought over for a long time, never reaching a satisfactory result. On this, cf. the book by Lauren Pristas: Collects of the Roman Missals: A Comparative Study of the Sundays in Proper Seasons before and after the Second Vatican Council.

THIS NEW COLLECTION, with its marvelous CHORAL SUPPLEMENT and 3-volume (spiral bound) ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT, has been described as “the peerless and indispensable resource for any parish musician serious about authentic Catholic music.” • <https://ccwatershed.org/hymn/>
