It's coming. The main hymnal is finished, the indexes are being compiled right now. It's still hoped that it'll go to press by the end of the year. The unexpected closure of the USCCB Publications Office set the project back as a new publisher had to be found.

Yay!!!

"Dear Santa Claus. I have been extra good this year. I have not yelled at any of my schola members for failing to use Dom Gajard's method regarding episemas, etc. Please send me a whole box of the new Hymnal for the Liturgy of the Hours!" :-)

How will we know when it is available?

A significant marketing effort is planned. I'll be sure it's mentioned here as well.

Bless you for enhancing my Thanksgiving Day with this "annuntio" of...truly..."gaudium magnum!" :-)

Will have an eye on perpetual "scan".

Two weeks have passed and we're in December now. Anyone have updates on this?

It continues to be close to going to press. The main body is finished now, and fully setup in InDesign—one tune was just swapped out this week, but I don't think any further changes to the hymns are forthcoming, and the indexes are being prepared—which I understand to be quite a task.

I know many would like it to be available already, but I can at least promise it isn't vaporware. In these strange times we live in now, I have no idea how long the printing process will take, but it's certainly getting closer.

Marc, any idea on the projected retail price in USD?

No—that will be set by the publisher, but I would expect it to be in the realm of comparable hymnals.

It looks like the publishers has been revealed in the November 2022 edition of the Newsletter of the Committee of Divine Worship of the USCCB.
