THREE CONSIDERATIONS FOR LITURGICAL MUSIC

In preparing music for the liturgy, there are three essential qualities of liturgical music to consider: holiness, goodness of form, and universality. (Chirograph of John Paul II on Sacred Music, §4-6)

- Holiness: the music should have a clear transcendent dimension, setting in focus the sacred text of the Mass rather than itself. Inspired through prayer, it should lead others to prayer and adoration. While there is much room for variety of melody, harmony, and rhythm, music for the Mass should communicate reverence, and be free of secular associations or other distractions from worship.
- Goodness of form: the music needs to be beautiful regardless of its simplicity or complexity. It is not enough for music to be exciting or entertaining; it must have those elements which raise the heart and mind to God through their clarity, gracefulness, and harmony.
- Universality: although the music will reflect the culture in which it exists, it should nevertheless by its nature be edifying to those from other cultures as well. Liturgical music should communicate the beautiful unity of tradition between the past and present; it should help worshipers to sense and understand their connection to the faithful of all times and places. Furthermore, universality implies that music for the congregation should be singable, fostering exterior participation. Likewise, music sung exclusively by the cantor or choir should prayerfully engage the hearts and minds of the listeners, fostering interior participation.

THE RESPONSORIAL PSALM

“Because [the Responsorial Psalm] is an integral part of the Liturgy of the Word, and is in effect a reading from Scripture, it has great liturgical and pastoral significance.” (Sing to the Lord: Music in Divine Worship, §155) Furthermore, the Book of Psalms was composed as a collection of sung prayers; this ancient musical tradition was immediately assumed into the Christian liturgy.

While there is some leeway with the selection of psalms, it is highly recommended that the psalm used be the one assigned in the lectionary, as it relates more closely to the first reading than any other option. Since we are responding in song to the preceding reading, the setting should be conducive to meditation, allowing the Word of God to take root in our hearts through the action of the Holy Spirit.

While the use of paraphrased psalms has been common, this practice should be avoided as we are singing the scriptures themselves. Therefore, the text should be taken from the lectionary translation, or from the 2010 Revised Grail Translation, approved for liturgical use by the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB).

OFFICIAL MASS SETTING OF THE ARCHDIOCESE OF BOSTON

The chants of the Roman Missal are the official Mass setting for the Archdiocese of Boston. We ask that your parish continue to use these in addition to the settings with which your parish is also familiar. We recommend that you begin with the simplest chants: Lord Have Mercy (Kyrie Eleison), Holy, Holy, Holy (Sanctus), and Lamb of God (Agnus Dei). The following online resources are free:

- Scores are available from ICEL at www.icelweb.org/musicfolder/openmusic.php
- Practice videos are available at www.bostoncatholic.org/newromanmissal.aspx
- Piano, guitar, and organ accompaniments are available at www.rjcceciliamusic.com/free-liturgical-works/accompaniments-icel-chants

“A cry from deep within our being, music is a way for God to lead us to the realm of higher things. As St. Augustine says, ‘Singing is for the one who loves.’ Music is therefore a sign of God’s love for us and of our love for him.”
